DAY or two ago we referred to the uneasy

feeling prevailing all over China, the sense of insecurity and impending trouble which is everywhere present. The letter of the Hankow correspondent of the Shanghan Courier amply confirms what we said so far reached Shanghai that there in heen a riot was no actual out break, but the mero whisper of an intended rising was sufficient to against the Chinese Government is wanting. throw the whole city into a state of panic. casiness existed amongst the foreign community, in consequence of rumours to the effect that the native city of Hankow was to be burned down on the night of the 15th instant. The conflagration was certainly anticipated by the natives, for they went even so at Wuchang. far as to turn out all the native fire engines; and although no fire occurred they poured water on the front of buildings, presumably with the idea that the damping would check the conflagration if it did burst out. Several houses and shops were considerably damaged by water, owing to the energies of the native patrolled the streets during the night, and all the shops were closed at 9 p.m., and the unless some extra inducement is held out. streets deserted, save by soldiers and the men working the native fire engines, who were going about with lanterns in their hands looking to see if there was any sign of a fire. The foreign community in this unprotected settlement, and without a gunboat of any nationality in port, calmly waited the result, sloop being impossible to most of the residents." The description of the precautions taken by the Chinese is calculated to provoke a smile, but the condition of affairs in Hankow and its neigh. bourhood is evidently a very serious one. does not appear that the disorderly tendency has its origin in any anti-foreign feeling, but, in the event of an insurrection breaking out the position of the foreigners would be by no means a pleasant one. AMATEUR DRAMATIC PERFORM.

Last night, at the City Hall, an amateur dramatic performance was given in housur of Mrs. Bernard, who intends shortly to leave the colony. done the data on which to ground the demand Mrs. Bernard has for a number of years been the leading lady in all local amateur dramatic performances, and her appearances on our local stage have been a succession of triumphs. has sustained successively the characters of Alice in "The Porter's Knot"; Lilian Varasour, in "New Men and Old Acres"; Lady Teasle in Happy Pair "; Penelope in "The Area Belle" Hortenge Bertaud in "A Wonderful Woman": Florence Marigold in "Uncle's Will" Naomi Tighs in "School"; Mrs. Sutherland in "A Lesson in Love," and last night that of Kate Hardcastle in "She Stoops to Conquer." In each and all of these diverse characters Mrs. Bernard has achieved marked success, showing histrionic powers of the highest order, such as are rarely attained by an amateur. The piece selected for the farewell performance was Oliver Goldsmith's charming comedy of "She Stoops to Conquer." Mrs. Bernardlong ago conquered the theatre going public of Hongkong, and when she made her appearance on the stage last night as Miss Hardcastle she was warmly received; throughout the

"Bhe Stoops to Conquer," like many another classic, is known to many more by name than by actual acquaintance, and to some of our readers a slight sketch of the plot may not be unwelcome. The play is a genuine comedy, in which humour predominates to the exclusion of all sickly sentiment. From beginning to end the audience is never called upon to shed tears, but is kept in a state of genuine amusement. "Fashione in dramatic literature may come and go," says Black in his volume on Goldsmith in the "English Men of Latters" series, "but the wholesome, goodnatured fun of 'She Stoops to Conquer' is as capable of producing a hearty laugh now as when it first saw the light in Covent Garden," comedy, which was an immense success on its first presentation, has held its place on the English stage for more than a century, and is likely to hold it as long as the stage survives. Mr. Hardcastle's family consists of himself, a plain, old fashioned country gentleman with a tolerably comfortable opinion of himself; Mng. Hardsastle, his wife, a vain, scheming, and vulgar party; Antony, better known as Tony Lumpkin, a son of Mrs. Hardonile by a former husband, adevil-maycare young out, fond of practical joking, but with a little more brains than his friends give him cal and often uncouth utterances and actions. The character of Tony has always been a hun favourite with theatre-goers. And, as a reviewer justly says, "No wonder. With all the young onb's jibss and jeurs, his impudence and grimaces, one has a sucaking live for the scapegrace; we lough with him, rather than at him; how can we fail to enjoy those malevolent tricks of his when he so obviously enjoys them himself?" better representative of the youthful 'squire could be found than Mr. Calthorne proved himself last night. He looked the part to the life; he never lost a point; and he seted with a consistency throughout that connect be too highly praised. His numerous sallies were greeted with frequent applause, while ever and anon the house was moved to involuntary mirth by his inimitable by play. Mr. Calthorpe has made several_successful appearances on the Hongkong stage, but he will certainly be best remembered by his excellent impersonation of Tony Lumpkin. A fine opportunity for the display of histrionic ability was also afforded in the part of Mrs. Hardcastle, but while Mrs. Chervan gave a capital presentment of the doting mother and avarious and, she was ledge of her part which is essential to easy suc natural acting. Like all Mrs. Bernard's impersonations, ber Kate Hardcastle was perfectly natural and life like. The self-possession with which in her own characteras Miss Hardcastle she pinned the luckless Marand audacity with which she met him disguised as a bar-maid; and the archness and tact with which she later led him on to ayow his love were all simply admirable, and showed the grace of a born actress. The screen scene was especiallyloudly appleaded, the discomfiture of Sir Charles Marlow expiting much marriment. The rôle of and ability. Mr. Newsham was very happy in his delineation of the irascible and sorely irritated Hardcastle. His suppressed fury when approaching young Marlow with the words-"Mr. Marlow, your servant. I'm your very humble servant" was finely simulated. his final outburst of rage, when asked by his guest for his bill was a picture to behold. This fine plece of acting evoked a perfect volley of applanes. The part, which is a heavy one, was all through sustained with great spirit and vigour and Mr. Newnbam scored als itimate success in it. pharacter of Marlow is not an easy one to depict, and much credit is due to Mr. Bryan for his conception of it. This gentleman has previous occasions proved himself an actor of no mean power, and he gave a very fair, though rather unequal representation of Marlow. He was stronger, we think, in the opening scenes; he seemed to lack "go" in the love-making episodes, and was hardly audible in two or three passages. Mr. Kidman made his first appearance on the local stage last night in the character of Hastings. He interpreted it very well, and spoke updistinctly. On the whole it was a highly credit. able first appearance, and we can congratulate Amsteur Dramatic Corps on this acpession to their strength. Mr. Lookwood, in the part of Sir Charles Marlow, gave a thoroughly realistic impersonation of that fond parent, and quite upheld the reputation he made for himself on his appearance as the Professor in "School." The minor characters were all well represented. The part should be ascribed the isolated state of Macao right. SUMMARY JURISDICTION. BEFORE MR. JUSTICE ROSSELL

TAUPER V. RIBERRO, $39. Mr. Holmes appeared for the plaintiff. The claim was for rent. The defendant had paid $20 into court, but disputed the remainder of the claim. The plaintiff is the owner of houses Nos. 10, 14, and 16. Mosque-street. The defendant formerly o capied No. 10. He afterwards wished to move into No. 16, and to take No. 14 for his mother. Repairs and alterations were to be made in the houses, but the plaintiff said these were quite unnecessary and were merely made, in compliance with defendant's wishes. One of the houses was vacant while under repair for a whole month, and for this the plaintiff claimed $13 rent. The remaining $6 is dispute was with reference to the other of tea dust, which were condemned in consehouse, occupied by defendant's mother. Repairs | quence of the colouring matter used in their were going on there during the month, and defendant said only half-the-house was occupied, said the whole house was occupied and he claimed the full $13 rent.

Having heard the evidence, his Lordship held that the whole of the last named bouse was occupied, and that defendant must pay the full rent, but with regard to the other one, he said it was absurd to charge rent for a bouse until it was habitable. He accordingly gave julgment or the plaintiff for $5 in addition to the $20
